WRITER URGES MAINTENANCE OF OPEN DOOR POLICY HERE

British Trade In China Hinges On This, Says Mr. J. O. P. Bland

CRITICISES JAPAN

Republic's Integrity Rests On Establishment Now Of Central Government

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—The first of a series of articles in The Times on Far Eastern problems, by Mr. J. O. P. Bland, dealing with China, emphasises the importance of China as the greatest potential market in the world.

With regard to the question of a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, Mr. Bland says that while Great Britain and Japan have evidently much to gain in the maintenance of the alliance, no good purpose can be served by shutting one's eyes to the fact that a good many things have been done in China by the Japanese Government or its agents during the past six years which can in no way be reconciled with the spirit or letter of the alliance.

OPEN DOOR POLICY FOR CHINA ADVOCATED

Mr. Bland emphasises that the main purpose of the alliance was to protect and preserve the integrity and independence of China, and maintain in China the principle of the open door. He says that any renewal of the alliance which fails to emphasise and safeguard this principle and insist upon its equitable application would be not only useless from the British point of view, but a certain source of trouble in the future.

"A complete return to the status quo ante bellum in China is clearly impossible," the writer remarks, "but, so far as Great Britain is concerned, the fundamental object of the alliance remains unchanged and it should be our definite aim to make it, when renewed, an effective instrument for the maintenance of those equal opportunities on which the future of British trade in China defends."

SEES NECESSITY OF CENTRAL AUTHORITY

"There can be no hope of permanently preserving the integrity and independence of China, unless immediate steps are taken to establish and maintain at Peking a central Government with authority sufficient to enable it to collect adequate revenues from the provinces. This central government cannot be established by the Chinese themselves without foreign intervention. In order to make its establishment and continued existence possible, the provincial armies of the Tuchuns must finally be disbanded and the Tuchuns themselves replaced by civil governors directly responsible to Peking."

"No such remedial measures are practicable unless and until the Powers concerned, especially Japan, come to a definite understanding and agree to pursue a common policy of readjustment and construction, based upon a sincere desire to re-establish the economic stability and political independence of China. Negotiations for a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance should provide a good opportunity for coming to such an agreement.

POWERS MUST DIRECT CHINA'S RECONSTRUCTION

"No satisfactory reconstruction of China can be attained by means of an international financial Consortium, unless the latter's organisation and method of procedure are clearly prescribed and supervised under a comprehensive agreement between the Powers concerned. Unless its duties and responsibilities are definitely laid down, a financial Consortium is bound to follow the line of least resistance, as in the past, to the ultimate detriment of China."

CUT DOWN LUXURIES ADVICE FROM BANKER

Washington, May 25.—Mr. W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, replying to an inquiry from the Senate with regard to the means by which currency and credits might be deflated and prices reduced, recommended individual economy, the reduction of non-essential bank loans, increased production and improved transportation. He said that bankers, familiar with local needs, must define "essential loans."

AMERICAN BANKS BEHIND MOVE TO CUT LIVING COST

Downward Trend Of Prices Is Seen As Indication That Decline Will Be Continuous

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 24.—Mr. Joseph French Johnson, Dean of the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, New York University, declares that the present downward trend of prices is a genuine indication that the orgy of spending is diminishing and in his opinion the deadline will be continuous. He adds that the fact that the banks are behind the movement to lower prices is the best assurance that the downward course will continue.

Careful independent surveys show that production in the United States, in spite of the handicap of railway congestion, is steadily increasing. Labor is employing more skill and taking more pains with its work so that the standard of the finished article is slowly improving.

Washington, May 22.—The Government, with the assistance of sugar importers and brokers, is formulating arrangements for the more effective distribution of sugar.

The railroad operating officials have been instructed first to attack the freight congestion by clearing a score of the more important junction points. The plan contemplates the formation of committees at thirty gateways to disentangle the mass of cars and expeditiously forward them with instructions to supplemental Commerce Commissions regarding re-routing and equipment pooling.

Boston, May 25.—A Federal suit has been brought against a number of sugar refiners, who are alleged to have been profiteering to the extent of $1,000,000. The defendants include several American refineries and the managers of these concerns have been arrested. The prosecution states that the defendants have withheld sugar from the marke' in order to enhance prices.

SEMENOFF'S UKASE

Harbin, May 27.—General Semenoff issued the following proclamation at Chita on May 24:

"The Provisional Government at Vladivostok seized the power on January 30 and continued until April 4, working with the representatives of Soviet Russia. At the present the Government is not only introducing laws and preaching mottoes which will lead the country to final corruption but is also proceeding to sell the property of the Russian people in the port of Vladivostok to foreigners, offering them various concessions, even territorial concessions. My aim is to defend Russia's interests, consequently as the lawful successor of the Supreme Ruler of the Russian Far East, I cannot allow any attempts to steal Russian national property, I therefore declare, (1) that the so-called Provisional Government no longer exists, (2) that all treaties and agreements with regard to territorial and other concessions are annulled and (3) that I shall appoint my representative in the Maritime Province, Kamtchatka and Saghalien and offer to form a Zemstvo Council in the interests of the population and for the general cause of the people, who should return to work."

Irish Situation In United States Called Scandalous

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 25.—Commenting on the angling of American politicians for the Irish vote and the efforts of Irish-Americans to induce the Government to interfere in British affairs; the New York Times says:

"The Irish question in the United States is scandalous. It has been made the sport of intriguing politicians who do not care a straw for Ireland. In the Presidential year, there is an ignoble competition to see who can go farthest in affronting England and trampling on the good understanding, which was one of the most hopeful results of the war. It will be the duty of the President to disregard any resolution to recognise the Irish Republic but it is a pity that no one can prevent such foolish resolutions from being introduced."

My Favorite For President

Straw votes are now being taken in America on the Presidential choice, so why not here? Only one lady sent in her vote yesterday! What thing?

First Choice . . . . . .

Second Choice . . . . . .

I am a Democrat—Republican

(Strike out one of the above)

My Name . . . . . .

My Address. . . . . .

(Note: If you wish to write a letter setting forth your views on the Presidential campaign we will be glad to print it.)

Hoover And Johnson Seen As Favorites Here In Presidential Contest

Ladies Display Little Interest In Political Situation That Is Agitating United States; Heavier Straw Balloting Is Anticipated Today

William Jennings Bryan finally broke into the presidential race yesterday in connection with the "straw ballot" being conducted by THE CHINA PRESS but Herbert Hoover is in the lead with senator Hiram Johnson a close second. Gen. Wood is a good third.

Evidently the abolition of white bread and food rationing during and since the war did not militate against the popularity of Mr. Hoover, even with the housewives. One family, divided in political belief, came to the front solidly for the former Food Administrator. The head of the house testified that she is a Republican and for Hoover first, last and all the time with no second choice. The gentleman of the establishment has subscribed to the doctrines of the Democrats but is also for Hoover with Mr. Bryan as his next choice.

Henry Cabot Lodge was another new entry in the list. He garnered three votes, one of them being a Democrat who is able to overlook the Senator's Republican sentiments.

Thus far the first choice vote stands:

Candidate	New Votes	Wednesday	Total
Hoover	29	10	39
Johnson	18	18	36
Wood	21	13	34
McAdoo	6	—	6
Lodge	3	—	3

For second choice the vote is:

Hoover	27	10	37
Wood	15	13	28
Johnson	15	12	27
Hughes	6	—	6
Lowden	5	—	5
Coolidge	—	1	1
Taft	1	—	1
Bryan	—	1	1

Ladies have not been taking as much interest in the straw ballot as was expected. Although several ballots were received on a late mail last night and could not be included in the summary only three ladies' votes were recorded. It is expected that today's balloting will be heavier and that the fair sex will have made up its mind as to its popular candidate within the next few days.

Among the votes cast for Hoover yesterday were four "Independents" and one "Human." Two Democrats voted for Johnson, two for Wood, three for Hoover and four for McAdoo.

Civil Administration For War Coolies, Suggests Hu

Returned Chinese Journalist Urges That Paris Legation Should Recall All Undesirable Laborers

Considerable interest has been aroused by the recent interview given by Mr. Hu Lin, the only Chinese newspaper man attached to the Versailles peace conference, on the treatment of Chinese laborers in France. Amplifying his remarks concerning them and advocating that the undesirables among the laborers should be sent home, Mr. Hu yesterday issued the following statement:

"There are at present some 20,000 Chinese laborers still in France and under military administration. While the Paris Government is most considerate in their treatment the officers immediately above them are not. These officers have mostly served in the colonised territories and naturally have the inclination of regarding them as subdued natives.

"It is true that the coolies, having been recruited from various parts of China and from among the poorer class, are of a cosmopolitan type and are hard to handle. The foremen and the interpreters are also sometimes undesirable. Language difficulties complicate matters still more.

"The Legation at Paris should look after these people and it did not.

"There is a movement on foot in France now to allow the coolies to be controlled by the civil administration instead of the military, which must necessarily be strict if not oppressive. The French Government, as far as I know, is prepared to sanction the proposal.

"France needs all the coolies now at her disposal and China as an Ally and friend should give her this particular need. If only these laborers are given fair treatment by their superiors and only the Chinese authorities in Paris will see that the undesirables among our laborers are sent home it will be a happy solution of the present difficulties.

"Needless for me to add that the transfer of the coolies from the military to civil administration will be most welcome and as a man who has seen the conditions in France, I sincerely hope that this will be carried out.

"France enjoys the cordial friendship of the Chinese. She has more Chinese students in her country than any other foreign country except the United States. As a journalist I was well treated by the French authorities. Nevertheless I cannot but regret the circumstances which tend to prevent our laborers there from enjoying their full liberty in the execution of their work."

Paris, May 26.—M. Deschanel's condition, after his recent accident, is entirely satisfactory. The President is leaving Paris at the end of the week for a rest in the country.

CHINESE ARE PRAISED BY EX-ENVOY IN HOME TALK

Make Many Allowances For Foreigners' Ways Is Opinion

RULE BY PEOPLE

Lack Of Government Is Not Perilous, Says Sir John Jordan

ARMENIA FACTOR

American Lawmakers In Disapproval Of Plan Of President

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 25.—In the course of an interview, published in the evening Standard today, Sir John Jordan declared that the "Inscrutable Chinaman" was a myth. The Chinese was as sociable good-tempered and generous as the rest of manking, hard workers, intelligent, honorable, with a great capacity for friendship, and very fair; making a lot of allowances for British exclusiveness.

Sir John dwelt on the modernisation of China, especially the development of sport and the freedom, now enjoyed by women, which was part of a very enlightened policy. Chinese women, he continued, were now endeavoring to expedite progress and were in everywise deeply interested in politics. He did not doubt that they would play a part eventually in the pronounced public opinion that was now developing in China.

Fortunately China did not require a government very much. The people governed themselves. They were thoroughly democratic, very industrious and above all tolerant.

CONGRESS BARS ARMENIA MANDATE

London, May 25.—A telegram from Washington states that there is no prospect of Congress accepting the mandate for Armenia. The President's proposal was received in silence by the legislators. The general view indicated is decidedly unfavorable although the American Armenian Committee still hopes that Congress will sanction the mandate.

Senators interviewed, said that it would be wicked to commit Americans to such a colossal undertaking without first taking a vote.

BRYAN ATTACKS WILSON POLICY

Washington, May 25.—Mr. Bryan has taken up the issue with President Wilson on the question of the mandate for Armenia. He contends that the United States could do more for democracy by recognising the Armenian Republic and entering the League of Nations as the friend of all the little countries.

PINCHOW RAID IS DESCRIBED

Few Are Killed In Clash Between Troops And Bandit Forces

(China Press Correspondence)

Pinchow, May 17.—The first that the town and surrounding village folk of Pinchow knew about the robber raid was that in a place south named Chi-Ch'ien-chen a day's journey or so away several battles had been fought by the Kansu soldiers to prevent its progress into this Province northwestward and into Kansu. This brought on a retreat of the Kansu army as far as this city in May and then further north finally into Kansu as the raid was oncoming and they were unable to stem the tide.

In May the pleasant little pastorial plateau northward of the city changed to be the field of battle as the Kansu troops again offered resistance. Thereupon followed an unrestrained raiding and looting of the homes of the prosperous farmers as well as the well-to-do homes of the town and villages. The robbers outraged the women and children and some men were killed outright for denying that they possessed ammunition.

FEW ARE KILLED

On the whole however comparatively few were killed. Nearly everything of value was taken and much that could not be taken was destroyed, as for instance home utensils of earthen ware and kettles and chopsticks which were broken or otherwise destroyed and thrown away. Not a horse or cow or donkey was left to the poor farmers when they returned home again after the raiders had moved further northwest.

Let it be said to the credit of the Raiders that they paid respect to the outstations of the mission and to those who could prove their connection with the Mission station. Mission property was protected and nothing of note was taken.

The city of Pinchow itself was not visited because it lays on the main road and is closely linked with other army camps both on the north and in the south. The expectation was none the less burdensome and the majority of the population fled to refuges in the hills, such stone cave security places as are so common up here in the interior. The mandarin or magistrate of the town with all the officers of the town also fled. The tension of the situation however only lasted for about three days after which the people again returned to their city homes.

IDENTITY DOUBTFUL

Now who were the raiders may be the question in the readers mind? Sometime before the armistice between the North and the South had come into effect a division of the Southern army from Yunnan came up into this Province to fight the cause of the Reformists against the existing from of Government in the Province, but as the armistice came into effect before any serious operations had taken place the same division was stationed at Iao-chow of this Province in the east.

General Ieh (if that is his proper title) in the meanwhile gathered under his control Lu-chang-K'uei and Chan Chiu-ts'ai both of them from Kansu and robber chief who with their bands promised reform and allegiance to the South.

Caricature Of German Heads Creates Stir In Berlin

The publication of a series of photo caricatures of German Government leaders, accentuating the peculiarities of the persons photographed, created quite a stir in Berlin recently. The pictures were the cause of much merriment in the German capital. The freak shapes are attained by convexing the paper when printing, with results similar to those obtained when looking into curved mirrors. On the left of the layout is shown Dr. August Mueller, German Chancellor. In the upper right is a shuat picture of President Ebert. Below on the right is shown a caricature of Philip Scheidemann.

Peking Must Pay German Share Of Hukwang Loan, Says Mr. Wen Tsung-yao

Maintains Peking's Attitude Is Detrimental To Financial Integrity; Will Cost Owners More To Prove His Rights Than Actual Bond Value

Maintaining that Peking's action in repudiating the liability of honoring the German shares of the Hukwang Gold Loan is detrimental to China's financial integrity, Mr. Wen Tsung-yao, newly appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Canton Administration, yesterday issued a statement and asserted that the burden of proof lies with the Central Government to show that the holder is not entitled to payment.

The full text of his statement follow:

"In 1911 the Chinese Government negotiated and concluded the Hukwang Gold Loan with four powers, the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany. This loan was for £6,000,000 and bearer bonds were issued bearing interest of five percent per annum. The first instalment of the principal is to be paid off in 1922.

"Since China entered the late war the Peking Government has taken the attitude that the bearer bonds representing the German share of this loan are not to be honored unless the holder can prove that the bonds are not now German property or were not purchased from Germans since China became a belligerent. This position is untenable since the interest on bearer bonds should be paid to the holder of the bond and it is necessary for the government to prove that the holder is not entitled to payment. These bonds have been transferred from one nation to another in the course of years. They have been used as is customary in financial transactions, and today some of the German bonds are held by Americans, Britishers and Frenchman.

"It would cost more than the bonds are worth for each individual to prove his right to the bond. Furthermore, this action is not in accordance with international procedure and because of it the Hukwang Bonds are selling at 50 percent of par on the New York and London exchanges. It is reported that these bonds will be withdrawn from European and American exchanges. Such an action is equivalent to a boycott of the bonds and it detrimentally affects China's financial integrity.

"China has never before defaulted on a loan. China must not default. In spite of the fact that we consider all of the loans made with Japan by Tuan Chi-jui illegal, and although we insist that all secret treaties and agreements should be published, we also maintain that all debts shall be paid. China is an honorable nation and its solvency must not be questioned. It is enough that we have been shamed by treason at home without being shamed by insolvency abroad."

So Crisp
—and Delicious, too!

There are definite reasons why the New Post Toasties are vastly superior in crispness and flavour to any other corn flakes.

In the new process of baking, intense heat raises tiny air "puffs" on each flake, bringing out a decidedly new and delicious flavour—the true flavour of the corn—unknown to the corn flakes of the past.

Owing to this new process the New Toasties maintain their crispness until eaten and do not grow soft and mushy in the bowl like other corn flakes.

The flavour is so delightfully pleasant that the New Post Toasties may be eaten and relished dry, though of course they are generally served with cream, rich milk, or fruit with a sprinkling of sugar.

GHOSTS INVADE WORKER'S HOME

Remarkable Manifestations In The House Of Unbeliever In Spiritism

BY C. F. BERTELLI

Paris, April 17.—An astounding invasion of ghosts that centers in the house of a humble carpenter, who does not believe in spiritualism, has aroused the interest of psychological and psychic societies, whose learned experts assert that the manifestations are the most remarkable on record, as well as a symptom of the spirit intervention that has become more frequent since the close of the war.

The Psychic Institute has arranged seances at the house in the poorer quarters where famous mediums have competed in trying to solve mysteries of broken dishes, moving tables and flying vegetables. Uncanny arms have appeared to hide money and to touch faces, sometimes caressingly, sometimes in what appears a sharp slap of angry rebuke.

The mystery has deepened as the manifestations have increased in intensity. Last July the clocks in the house of the carpenter started slowing up, three hours at a time. Finally the dining room clock disappeared. It was found covered with lingerie in the bottom of a trunk.

At the same time dishes began to dance while the family was eating. Glasses flew from the kitchen into the dining room, mounted to the ceiling and then crashed on the floor.

Every evening the manifestations began at 9 o'clock and lasted until midnight. The father and son appeared to be the especial objects of the ghosts. They were frequently awakened by slaps on the face or by pillows thrown at their heads. At other times ghostly hands would smooth their hair or rub their chests "as though trying to massage."

Sometimes, according to the father and son, delicate hands, whose fingernails gleamed with a pink reflection as after treatment by a manicure, could be seen gently touching the bed linen. The hands would repulse efforts to seize them by sharp slaps.

It was the habit of the ghostly hands, before departing for the night, to affectionately press the hands of father and son.

People from every station in life have been witnesses of the manifestations. They have come from far and near as though to attend a theatrical performance. After assembling in a house where demonstrations had been reported, they have been usually compelled to wait an hour or two.

Then suddenly, the dining room table would "walk," spools of thread would fly around the room, bookstands descend from a bookshelf, or potatoes, that had been in a closed kitchen cupboard, would jump to the ceiling and on descending frequently hit the heads of those in the audience.

These manifestations have been linked with those reported by the cure of the little town where Mirabeau, lived in his boyhood. The priest declared that a picture of the crucification had yielded drops of real blood.

Other demonstrations have been the reproduction of spirit photographs, of persons like Napoleon, Joan of Arc and Talleyrand.

Reports of apparent efforts by spirits to communicate with the earth have been coming from over all of France. All cases are being thoroughly investigated to detect possible fraud.

Missing American Sought By Consul; Tragedy Is Feared

MR. R. T. HARTE

Mr. R. T. Harte, a native of North Carolina, arrived in Shanghai in January, 1920. He was employed for a short time by the British-American Tobacco Company. On March 15, 1920, he disappeared from the Kalee Hotel where he was living and has not been heard of since. It is feared that he may have lost his life.

The American Consulate-General is seeking information in regard to the present whereabouts of Mr. Harte with a view to having him repatriated if still living.

Mr. Harte is described as a young man of 23, six feet in height, with brown hair and blue eyes.

Statz Sells Above Settlement Price

Auto Stock Quoted On The Curb Market At $470 A Share, Without Dividend

New York, April 27.—An unusual aftermath to the Stutz corner developed yesterday when the shares sold at a higher price than the settlement figure agreed upon between Allen A. Ryan and the shorts. The quotation for the stock, selling ex-edividend on the Curb, was $470 a share, whereas in the settlement agreement the price was $425 a share, the additional amount to bring the total up to $550, which the shorts will have to pay, being made up of the stock dividend of $85 a share and premiums of $40. An advance in the price of a cornered stock after settlement has been effected is said to be without precedent in the history of Wall Street corners.

The actual settlement in the Stutz case will be made by the shorts today. Practically all of those interested in making the settlement had made the arrangements for it yesterday. It is not believed that Mr. Ryan will be in the city for the settlement today, as he went to Virginia Saturday and did not expect to return until tomorrow.

There was some discussion as to Mr. Ryan's membership in the Stock Exchange. Early in the corner controversy he resigned from the Exchange and ordered that his seat be sold. This order is still in effect, but action on the request has been deferred by the Stock Exchange. Under the Stock Exchange rules a man remains a member of the Exchange until his seat is sold.

DEPEW WOULD LIVE TO 100

At 83 Wants To Attend Four More National Conventions

Peekskill, N. Y., April 22.—Chauncey M. Depew at his home here today told of preparations for celebrating his birthday on Friday. He will be 86 years old on that day.

"How do you feel at eighty-six?" he was asked.

"I never felt better," he replied. "I'm going to try to live to be 100 years old. I like this world, and especially Westchester County. I was born April 23, 1834, in Peekskill. Shakespeare and St. George were born on the same date but not in Peekskill nor in the same year."

"Who's going to win the next election?" Mr. Depew was asked.

"The Republicans are going to win," he replied.

"But who will be the Republican nominee?"

"Ah, that's the question?" replied the veteran of sixty-three years in Republican politics. "I am a delegate to the Republican National Convention, you know. I was a delegate to the convention of 1864, which renominated Lincoln. Since then I have missed only three national conventions of the Republican Party. I think that is a record."

Mrs. Depew will give a birthday dinner in New York tomorrow evening, and later Mr. Depew will attend the dinner given in his honor by the Montauk Club in Brooklyn.

Senator Reed Sees Democrats Suicide In Treaty Issue

Washington, April 25.—Senator James A. Reed, Democrat from Missouri, has stated that President Wilson's plan to make the treaty a campaign issue is political suicide, as it means a Democratic loss in every state north of the Mason and Dixon Line, and the breaking of the "Solid South."

EUGENICS FIRST, PLEA OF PINARD

French Professor Urges Guidance Of Men And Women To Conserve Race

BY PROF PINARD

Members of The Paris Academy of Medicine

Paris, April 17.—If we would remedy the crisis of depopulation and improve the race, we must try to eradicate the feeling which leads human beings to leave the development of the great instinct of life to fate, providence or even caprice.

In order to have a sound race we must teach men and women that respect for the child must begin before its birth, before its conception, even. At present the instinct procreation, the most noble and powerful of all—the very basis of life and creator of the future, is allowed to develop itself as blindly as in prehistoric days.

You teach men how to eat and drink, but you give young men and women no guidance in regard to civilising the instinct of the conservation of the race. The reproduction of animals and even plants is guided with care—the human race is left to shift for itself.

How illogical this is! When you consider the results obtained by a little thought in the domain of plants and in the betterment of various races of animals, it would seem as if anyone concerned about the future would try to apply even greater efforts to the human race.

Man should not marry in blind passion or selfishness, but only be spurred by conscious love. This would not take the poetry out of life, nor diminish love. On the contrary, it would make the bonds between man and woman stronger, more sincere. A sound race depends on a state of mental and physical equilibrium.

If either of the parents is ill, worried, the victim of an obsession or vice, the child will in all probability inherit the patient's defects or be supersensitive. Married life, therefore, should be one of general mental and physical well being. Both parents should feel to the full the joy of living.

Any human being who realises the consequences of a rash action and yet makes no effort to rule his instinct is a criminal. Everyone should keep his biological capital intact until, meeting with real love, he spends it, undiminished and unpolluted, conscious that the time has come.

Ex-Service Men To Demand Places In Two Big Parties

Washington, April 26.—Announcement was made tonight that at a conference here today steps were taken to organise "the Ex-Service Men's National Political Vigilance Committee," the purpose of which is to obtain representation for ex-service men in the councils of both political parties and insist upon recognition of their interests. Colonel Grant T. Trent of Rogersville, Tenn., was elected temporary Chairman, and Private George S. Carll, Jr., of Indianapolis was elected temporary Secretary.

Colonel Trent gave out an interview in which he said that it was apparent that the old organisation leaders in both parties were preparing to place the sign of "no service men need apply" on the doors of the National Conventions at Chicago and San Francisco. A list of the delegates already chosen for both conventions, he said, showed that former soldiers would have about as large a representation as the people of Guam. While General Wood was the most prominent candidate for the Republican nomination, said Colonel Trent, the old-line Republican leaders were insisting that he be eliminated on account of his military service, and General Pershing "was simply scoffed at as a Presidential possibility."

Terming this condition a "conspiracy to eliminate our soldiers from direct and active participation in the affairs of the two great political parties," Colonel Trent declared that the 4,500,000 men discharged from the service had found that the organisations of their parties were in the hands of a few men who stayed at home.

"We intend," he added, "to have ex-service men affiliated with both political parties on our committee and conduct our campaign along that line."

NEW BISHOPS ARE NAMED BY CHURCH FOR CHINA POSTS

Head Of Shanghai Diocese Is To Be Transfered To North Capital

Three bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church are to be stationed in China hereafter instead of two as was the case in the past. This was the news received last evening in a cablegram to Rev. Paul Hutchinson from the general conference that has been in session at Des Moines, Iowa, since May 1.

Fourteen bishops were elected at the conference, the largest number in the history of a church meeting.

Bishop Wilson S. Lewis, who has been stationed in Shanghai, has been transferred to Peking to fill the position left vacant by the death of Bishop J. W. Bashford in March, 1919.

Bishop Lauress J. Birney, former dean of the theological school at Boston University, has been assigned to Shanghai.

A new episcopal residence has been created at Foochow and Bishop F. T. Keeney has been assigned to the post.

Bishop Herbert Welch, who has spent four years at Seoul, Korea, has been returned to that diocese.

Berlin Correspondents Report Dangerous Intrigue, Despite Official Reassurances

Berlin, April 21.—Despite official reports that no outbreak is threatened in Pomerania, special correspondents of the Berlin newspapers sent to investigate report there is plenty of inflammatory material in that region.

The semi-official Allgemeine Zeitung's Stettin correspondent says that, although the Baltic troops have been partly dissolved and disarmed, the men secretly rearm themselves at night. The real danger spot, he says, is the fortified island of Danholm, near Stralsund, whence equipping and rearming is proceeding systematically.

Other correspondents say that Greifswald University is a hotbed of monarchist agitation. The students, who at present number 2,500, mostly former army officers, are resuming their studies at the university. The Tageblatt says that secret conclaves occur between the Agrarian leaders and the university men, and that military authorities with officers in civilian dress are rushing to and fro.

The Vossische Zeitung says that General von Luttwitz, who led the Kapp military forces, and Major Bischof of the Baltic troops were seen in Greifswald on Monday. The newspaper agrees that Stralsund is in a ferment, but says trouble is not likely to occur until the Spring tillage has been concluded in the first week of May. On the other hand, the newspaper adds, there is friction between the agricultural laborers whose trades union is well organised, and the Baltic forces, while the laborers are not particularly friendly toward the students.

French Girls Win As Brides Of U. S. Boys

2,295 Out Of 3,709 Registered At Hoboken Were Of That Nationality

Washington, April 20.—French girls far exceeded all other foreigners for popularity in the eyes of American soldiers, sailors and marines, according to a report of the number of brides brought back to this country by members of the A. E. F.

Records of nationality of wives of American military and naval men returned to this country kept at the port of embarkation at Hoboken show that out of a total of 3,709 brides, 2,295 were French girls.

Until March 15 the nationalities of Europeans married by American service men abroad and returned to this country were French, 2,295; British, 1,101; Luxembourgoise, 92; Belgian, 79; Italian, 41; German, 31; Russian, 23; Spanish, 7; Swiss, 5; Polish, 5; Greek, 4; Dutch, 3; Rumanian, 3; Servian, 2; Jugo-Slav, 2; Czech, 1; Mexican, 1; unknown, 14.

These figures represent only the number of foreign brides brought home by members of the American Expeditionary Forces who were received and cared for in the hostesses' houses under the supervision of the Red Cross at Hoboken. A number also came by commercial boats, and of these there is of course, no record at the port of embarkation.

It is understood that a total of approximately 5,000 members of the American Expeditionary Forces married foreigners.

China Political Notes From Chinese Papers

Upon assuming his office, Admiral Sah declared that he would not be responsible for financial and diplomatic matters. Now that the Japanese note has been rejected, Admiral Sah is more optimistic and contemplates negotiations for a small loan for the administrative expenses for the month.

It has been decided to submit the Shantung question to the League of Nations. The Cabinet has circulated a telegram to all the Chinese Ministers in foreign countries inviting their views on the subject.

Following the rejection of the Japanese note, a great deal of confidence has been shown to Acting-Premier Sah by the various bodies. Admiral Sah is now concentrating his efforts in getting the Southern navy to come to terms. If he succeeds in this, he will most probably be asked to form a Cabinet permanently.

According to the report of Mr. Chiang Chin-koo, Charge d'Affaires at Tokio, the Government of Tokio will hold a secret session on the reply received on the Shantung question. No declaration has yet been made as to its attitude.

The Presidential Office, the Cabinet and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs will hold a joint conference on the Shantung question in preparation of its submission to the League of Nations.

According to a telegram from General Chang Chin-yao, Tuchun of Hunan, he deputed General Wu Hsin-tien to confer with General Wu Pei-fu and a representative of General Tan Yen-kai, Mr. Hsiao Pih-chen, in Hengchow. An agreement was arrived at and documents were signed for Wu Hsin-tien to assume command of the Northern Defense Forces. General Wu Pei-fu would withdraw entirely on May 25.

News from Szechuen indicates that General Hsiung Keh-wu has declared war on General Tang Chi-yao, Tuchun of Yunnan. His opponents have begun bombarding him and martial law has been declared in Chengtu.

Because of Japan's arbitrary method of making use of Heilungkiang to despatch her troops to Siberia, the Central Government has ordered General Sun Li-cheng, the Tuchuen, to lodge a vigorous protest against the action with the Japanese authorities.

The Peking Government considers that all the Russo-Chinese treaties have lost their effect and proposes to treat nationals of Russia as those of countries without treaties with China.

AMERICAN TRAINS ITALIAN RUNNER

Platt Adams Thinks Crack Half Miler Will Score In Olympic Games

The report from Italy is that Platt Adams, the American trainer of the Italian Olympic team, has tuned up Emilio Lunghi, the middle distance runner, to such an extent that he will be able to score in the Olympic games. If the rumor should turn out to be true Lunghi will establish a new record as a continuous performer, as it will be his twentieth year in active competition. He is now 35 years of age, and whether or not he will be able to keep the pace with the younger rivals only time will tell.

The Italian runner will be remembered in connection with his sensational race for the Canadian half mile championship eleven years ago, when he won in the world record time of 1 minute 52 4-5 seconds, figures which still adorn the Canadian record tables as the best mark over the border.

No doubt was expressed about the timing, but it was whispered that Lunghi never ran the full distance, the question having been created by the fact that Frank Riley, who was second, was only three yards away at the finish. Riley was then good for a shade under 1 minute 57 seconds, and for him to show such sudden improvement caused all sorts of discussion about the validity of Lunghi's time.

However, the A. A. U. accepted the record, but the late James E. Sullivan regretted that he did not call for a survey of the track immediately after the race. Lunghi ran in the London Olympics in 1908 and was placed in the 800 meters to Mel Sheppard, who won in 1 minute 52 4-5 seconds. The Italian also ran in the 800 meters at Sweden in 1912 but never reached the final.

Shanghai Yacht Club

The annual general meeting of the Shanghai Yacht Club was held yesterday afternoon on board The Foam, headquarters of the organisation. Mr. E. T. Byrne, the Commodore, presided and there was a good number of members present.

Notice convening the meeting was read by the Secretary, the minutes of the last General Meeting and Secretary's and Treasurer's reports having been pased the meeting proceeded to elect officers and committees for the Sesson.

Mr. E. T. Byrne and Mr. T. Mellows were again elected Commodores and Vice-Commodore, respectively. Mr. T. H. H. Shaw was elected Rear-Commodore.

The Commodore, in his speech remarked on the successful season the club had last year when the racing was good and much interest was shown by the non-owning members. He much regretted that there were so few racing yachts and seemingly little prospect of new boats being built; but said the club must hope for better times.

The members attention was drawn to the fact That the organisation should, in the near future, have to seek a larger home for the club as the accommodation of present headquarters was insufficient.

After some discussion regarding the Prize Fund, the meeting was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

SCIENTISTS FIND LOST ATLANTIS; SEA SWALLOWED BIG TROPIC LAND

Discoveries Made In Panama Zone Prove Great Tract Once Existed

3,430 MILES IN LENGTH

Wonderful Land Had Its Own Flora And Fauna; Mountains 20,000 Ft.

BY DR. W. H. BALLOU

Discoveries recently made by the Panama Canal Zone and West Indies Geologic Survey, American Museum of Natural History expeditions, and made public now for the first time, present indisputable evidence that a vast Continent actually did exist at one time in the American tropic sea.

Maps, completed as a result of these expeditions, disclose a continent approximately 3,430 miles in length, or the distance from New York to San Francisco. It had mountain ranges with peaks 20,000 feet high. Cuba, the Danish West India Islands, Porto Rico, Santo Domingo, as well as many islands in the Lesser Antilles, were part of it.

No evidence whatsoever is obtained to even remotely indicate that the lost continent ever had the remotest connection with either the North or South American continents.

ISOLATION WAS COMPLETE

Its isolation from both is so manifest that of the many species of extinct animals discovered on this continent not one has ever existed on the mainlands. Its prehistoric mammals, birds, reptiles, crustaceans, fish, and even its coral polyps, are astonishingly and exclusively its own.

This vast continent, then was the one which Solon, the great law giver of early history, described to Plato as Atlantis. He said it had vast populations, cities, architecture and civilisation, 9,000 years before his time, when it sank into the sea.

The American museum geologists and paleontologists who have at last established Atlantis as a true continent and a fact of science, refuse, however, to give it that name. They refer to it as "Antillia," and some of them, because the boundaries as far as surveyed may ultimately have to be vastly extended, insist that it be called "The Great Antillean Continent."

"Atlantis" to taboo with hard-shelled investigators because it has so long been associated with myths and fables, which from their point of view may or may not have any foundation in fact. Whatever they call it, it is Atlantis just the same, because more than forty years ago an authority, no less than Louis Agassiz, affirmed the continent was there under water, and that it had been the home of an animal kingdom which is without relation anywhere else on earth.

PANAMA ZONE DISCOVERED

When the United States Geological Survey completed its fossil and stratigraphic survey of the Panama Canal Zone and the West Indies, there was nothing else for them to do but accept Atlantis, or the Great Antillean Continent, as a fact.

Dr. Thomas Wayland Vaughn, geologist in charge, in his summary states that the newly discovered continent included Cuba, Porto Rico, San Domingo, Windward Islands—in fact all West Indian islands with the possible exception of Jamaica. The evidence is possible, though not conclusive, that the British stronghold was also a part of this great mainland.

Independently, the members of the American Museum expeditions have arrived at the identical conclusions. H. E. Anthony, who has collected the fossil mammals, and Dr. Barnum Brown, expert on fossil reptiles, fish, birds and also mammals, have collections at the American Museum for these islands, which if restored to life, would puzzle even the most noted experts. They just don't resemble animal life as we know it elsewhere, living or extinct.

Fossil corals taken from ancient reefs, the Government men find exclusive to that particular region, although eight genera of the polyps which formed them, according to Miss Maury and Dr. Vaughn, managed to swim away from the convulsions and destruction of their time and find safety at the head of the present Gulf of California. At least these forms with some evolutionary modifications are entrenched there to day.

Even the botanists find the fossilised plants of the lost continent strangers to the Great Elsewhere. Then there was the Manatee, or sea cow, found in Florida rivers. Fossil forms of him are found in the lost continent, but he is and was a great swimmer, and some of his ancestors doubtless get into the Elsewhere while the swimming was good, otherwise there would be none of him today.

An astonishing thing is the number of fossil bats found in the caves of the present West Indian islands. When the convulsions came they doubtless refused to use their wings and escape from their home of more than 2,000,000 years. We know this because no fossil bats like them have been found elsewhere, nor have they living descendants in any other locality.

The bat, as we know him here, is our champion flyer and is a migrator, according to season. The species we often see winging about on Summer evenings fly without pause over the whole stretch of ocean in the Autumn from the United States to South America. They are winging back now.

Other species are non-migratory, hibernating in rotten stubs and caves during the Winter months. Evidently the Eocene-Miocene-Pleistocent bats of the lost continent belonged to this type, and could not escape when their homes went under water.

Dr. Barnum Brown tells me that the caves in which the extinct bat remains are massed contain also vast deposits of bones of extinct mammals, birds, reptiles, etc. The fossil hunters have, however, only scratched the surface of the existing islands, so far, say, an average depth of two feet.

Perhaps lower down, or deeper within the caves, they will yet come across fossil remains of people, making us sit up and pay some attention to those chaps we denominate as theorists, Solon, Plato and Le Plongeon. Of these, Le Plongeon was the most reliable. Not one of his measurements of uncovered pyramids or his diagrams has ever been questioned.

DR. SPENCER'S CONCLUSIONS

Dr. J. W. Spencer, of the Geological Society of America, who made the surveys of ocean floors, concludes:

"From the conformation of the sea bottom in tertiary times, there must have been an elevation of continental surface of Antillia, ranging from one and a half to two and a half miles.

"As the ridges of the sea bottom seem to follow out the general direction of the mountain ranges as at present existing on the islands, the present under sea ridges and the still visible island ranges must have been part of the same system.

"The present island ranges have altitudes up to 8,000 feet, so that the former continent ranges would have peaks above 20,000 feet high. The channels in the under sea surface, running at right angles to the ridges, seem to have been cut by great rivers flowing down the mountain sides."

H. E. Anthony, of the American Museum, finds that Antillia extended from the Danish West Indies on the east and including them, to Central America on the west, and including part of it. He would, however, exclude Jamaica, because he found no extinct life remains there of the types he found in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The University of California Biological Survey has just concluded a survey of the habitat of this strange mammal, and finds it sticking to high places in the mountains a far north as British Columbia. It cuts and stores grass for hay feed in Winter, same as you or me and other farmers. The two extinct rodents he found in Jamaica indicate that the near rats of that island in tertiary times were too bear like in size, too slow and bulky to escape the prehistoric cat or even the ancient crocodiles which flourished there. Jamaica, then, was possibly formerly a part of Honduras.

Dr. W. D. Matthew, paleontologist of the American Museum, says of the extinct animals of ancient Antillia:

"The only North American mammal there was the manatee, which could swim to or from it, same as the hippopotamus to and from the island of Madagascar.

"Still living in Cuba and Hayti is the mammal solenodon, a peculiar and very primitive insect eating creature. The fossil secured show a number of species of extinct ground sloths, of which one named megalocnus, is the best known, living in Pleistocene times, and a couple of chinchillas."

Dr. Matthew is fierce against land bridges between ancient continents but thinks Antillia's ground sloths had ancestors in far off Patagonia in Miocene times. They probably reached Antillia on rafts of sea weeds, blown by obliging winds or borne by friendly currents.

"Nay, nay," says Dr. Vaughn, grand boss of the zone survey:

"'Although I greatly respect the scholarship and appreciate the valuable researches of Dr. W. D. Matthew, I am unable to agree with his opinions as to the means of distribution of Antillean mammals and some of the other land vertebrates."

Professor W. B. Scott, paleontologist of Princeton University, strong supporter of the one time continent insists in his "Land Mammals," that the strange creatures called Solenodon of Cuba and Hayti are nearly the same thing as the insectivorous mammals of Madagascar called tenrecs, or centetes.

FAUNA IS INDISTINCT

Dr. Gerrit S. Miller, paleontologist of the Smithsonian Institution, is just as positive that the Antillean continent was not inhabited from Patagonian migrants or had ancestors there. He says:

"With characters of eight genera of mammals known, it is possible, to gain some idea of Antillean fauna. In no instance has a West Indian genus been found in Argentina or Patagonia. On the contrary, they show peculiarities that would be out of place there and would be recognised as foreign to the present South American fauna.

"Nor do they present characters of South American animals of any geological period. Of later influence from the mainland there is not trace."

Opinion of the surveying scientists is divided hopelessly on the question as to whether Atlantis, or Antillia sunk or not, or stands upright today as it always stood. Agassiz, who discovered that the earth had been under glacial periods, and Croll, who interpreted him in studies of the great Ice Age, assume that the earth always had much water, no more and no less.

When the ice was thousands of feet thick and covered the whole of this continent, the ocean water went down or rather, was absorbed in the ice cap leaving Antillia and other sections high and dry for hundreds of thousands of years altogether. When the ice caps melted down the oceans gradually arose again, drowning out whatever inhabitants, animals and plant that had been in existence.

LOWDEN FAVORS A WORLD COURT

Illinois Governor Would Abandon League Of Nations For Hague Plan

Chicago, April 10.—A speech delivered here tonight by Governor Lowden of Illinois, in which he advocated the abandonment of many of the principles of the League of Nations and urged a movement by the United States to bring about a resumption of the work of The Hague conference to provide the necessary judicial machinery for the settlement of international disputes, caused a stir in political circles.

The speech marked the last effort of the Governor in his campaign for the favor of the Illinois electorate as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, and it started every one talking. Some accepted it as putting Governor Lowden in the attitude of an "irreconcilable," so far as the Wilson league of nations was concerned. He warmly indorsed the Senate reservations.

The Governor made his address before the field forces of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"When the war was over," said Governor Lowden, "the whole world was in a state of suspense as to what might happen after war. During those strenuous months of struggle, when the flower of our young manhood was offering itself upon the battlefields of Europe, it was hoped that in some way out of that colossal conflict might come a better understanding, better international relations, with the possibility of less frequent wars for the future. So to many of us it seemed that the time was ripe for taking up the work of The Hague international conferences, providing for judicial machinery for the settlement of international disputes, codifying international law so far as it was possible, bringing about closer relations between the nations, to the end that peace might prevail among the nations of the earth.

"That was the aspiration of almost every human heart. We have failed to realise that aspiration for the reason that, instead of adopting the idea of judical determination of differences, a political alliance among the nations was created. When that alliance was created and given the name of the League of Nations, it was seen by our people that, instead of preventing future wars, it was itself likely to prove the breeder of more wars.

"So the Republican Party in Washington, the majority of the Republican Senators in the Capitol, decided that such covenant must be so limited by reservations as to make clear forever the fundamental principles upon which our Government rests. It, therefore, adopted a reservation preserving in all its integrity the Monroe Doctrine—that doctrine under which for a hundred years we had lived on terms of amity with Europe.

"I have always felt that we overlooked the opportunity of a lifetime in that we did not take up the great work of The Hague conference where they left off, and go on to the creation of international courts, so that we might arbitrate our international differences, rather than fight them out on bloody battlefields.

"I still think that we overlooked an opportunity that comes to a nation but once in a century. If we had done that we would have in existence the machinery for adjusting these international differences that now threaten the peace of the world. But the League of Nations, without reservations in the form of which it was brought to this shore, would have created, in my opinion, a super-State, a State which would have overawed and overcome the American Republic. Therefore these reservations insisted upon by the Senate of the United States were righteous and just.

"We are in favor of peace; we want the friendship of every nation on the face of the globe; we are looking for friends, but we are not looking for partners. We prefer to maintain our own independence and preserve our own sovereignty under the dome of our own Capitol at Washington."

DOLL MAKING IN ENGLAND

The War Helped To Establish This Industry Firmly There

During the war, reports Consul Gassett at Leeds, England, there has been firmly established at Dewsbury, in the Leeds district, an industry which formerely was almost a German monopoly. Soon after the outbreak of hostilities not only were the children of the United Kingdom deprived of their customary supplies of German made dolls, but British manufacturers lost the whole of their export trade with the Central Powers, to whom they had been accustomed to send large quantities of making of dolls' wigs and in the construction of pads for women's coiffures. There was also an extensive business done with the Continent, as well as at home, in theatrical wigs and masks, hair frames and hair pads.

For several years before the war a Dewsbury firm had been engaged in handling mohair and other kinds of hair for a variety of purposes and had at its command trained labor which could be readily adapted to enterprises on somewhat different lines. The Board of Trade realised the practicability of this firm extending its business and thus helping to overcome the situation created by the lack of German dolls and the very small supplies that were coming from France and the United States.

Some dolls were being made in England, but they were outclassed by foreign productions with which there was no effective competition. In a remarkably short period these conditions have been changed and the Dewsbury firm is now carrying on a flourishing business in all branches of the doll-making trade at a large factory equipped with up-to-date plant and machinery. Already upward of 300 workers are employed and the output has reached considerable dimensions, with constant developments under way. The range of designs in dolls numbers fully 1,000 and many of the models are equal to any formerly produced in foreign countries. The position has been so reversed that it is hoped that not only can the home market be adequately supplied, but a considerable number of dolls exported. The production of hair frames is also being developed; the output of these is over 20,000 a week. A large percentage of them are being sent abroad, there being an excellent demand for them in all parts of the world.

Many Attend Russ Officers' Dance At French Club

A large number of people attended the concert-dance given last night at the Cercle Sportif Francais under the auspices of the Russian Officers' League. Although no definite figure could be secured last night, a handsome sum has been secured, it is understood, for the charity fund in aid of the many needy Russians in port, for which purpose the ball was given.

A splendid concert program was staged. Members of the Russian Society of Literature and Arts, of the Russian Balalaika Orchestra and Russian Chorus and Ballet as well as a number of other talented artists participated.

WHAT WOMAN NEEDS

Above all things are Health and Happiness. These are the true Woman's Rights! Every woman is entitled to them. Dame Nature intended her daughters to be healthy in body and happy in mind. Any woman conscious of pain and trouble which she feels might be removed will be well advised to make careful enquiry as to the cause. If it is found—as indeed is frequently the case—that a disordered digestion is giving rise to ill-health and the consequent depression of spirits, medicine of the right sort will doubtless soon set matters right. But it must be of the right sort. Beecham's Pills are to be strongly recommended for woman's needs. They may be taken with perfect confidence for derangements of the digestive organs, including such unpleasant ailments as sick-headache, biliousness, flatulence, constipation and the inanities and worries often incidental to her sex. Every woman may get nearer to Health and Happiness by using

LOCAL CHINESE CHURCH ACTIVE IN SOCIAL WORK

Survey Shows Almost Every Institute Is Promoting Good Service

One of the developments in Christian work in China is the increasing emphasis that is being put on institutional features in the churches. Many churches in Shanghai are promoting church night schools at the present time. Others are promoting play among the children of their neighborhoods. Hundreds of members of churches are giving one to five hours each week in some form of voluntary social service, much of which is done in church rooms.

The Baptist Churches of Shanghai are among the leaders in this kind of work, though large plans are under way in other denominations. Grace Baptist Church, on North Szechuen Road, has, in addition to its regular religious program, playground work, indoor games, socials, local teachers' union, afternoon school for women servants, evening schools, lectures, moving pictures, etc.

HAVE MEN'S CLUBS

The Union Cantonese Church has had its men's club, with socials, entertainments, school, etc, for the past several years.

The Presbyterian Church of Peking Road, now worshipping at the Press Chapel on North Szechuen Road, has a men's club of about 300 members, with night school, social and games rooms, monthly and annual entertainments. Last year the men's club itself had a budget of $1,200.

The Presbyterian Church at South Gate is expressing itself in part through the Nantao Institute, where a large social, educational, and religious work is being carried on.

Many churches are planning new buildings and have already raised part of the necessary money.

The Baptist Cantonese Church has just been completed, and will have a large program of social relationships.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

At the Old North Gate, the Baptist Church building is now almost completed. It has a lecture and gymnasium hall with reading and games rooms on the ground floor, an auditorium that will seat about 800 people, class rooms for 200 night school students and a roof garden. Other buildings on the premises will provide for socials, special work for young men, for women, and many class rooms for day and night students.

At the present time the members of the North Gate Church are promoting a campaign for funds to furnish the church. Last Thursday night, 30 young men met to launch their campaign for $1,500. This is considered, a part of $10,000 which the whole church is now raising. The young men plan to buy a fine moving picture lantern, office desks, equipment for reading and game rooms, and other equipment for the schools. The present night school has 94 students enrolled, but the new church provides for 300.

POPULAR WITH CHINESE

Work of this kind is popular with the Chinese Christians and also with those knowing little or nothing about Christianity. In every city there is pressing need for places and plans for young men to spend their leisure time, and for enlisting the energies of all in community uplift work. The meeting on Thursday night was a most enthusiastic one. In addition to workers themselves, Mr. H. K. Caskey representative of the International Committee of Y.M.C.A's, New York, addressed the young men on making the campaign a success.

A general survey of the situation shows that almost all the influential churches of the city are promoting social work.

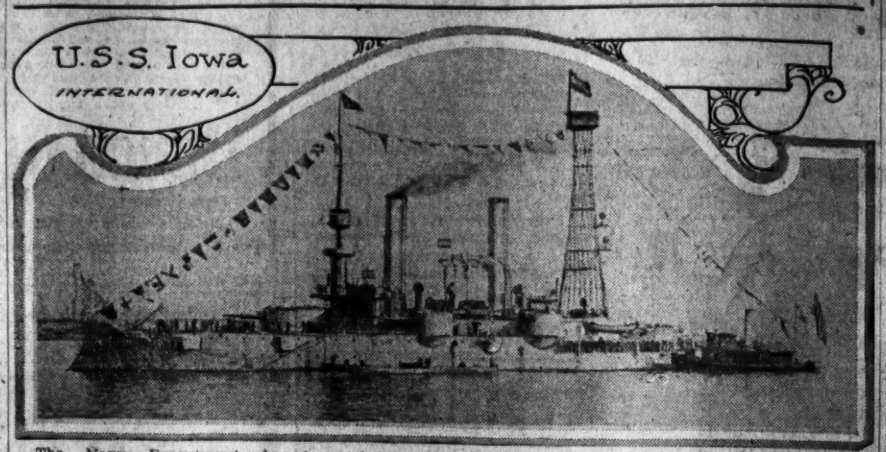
'Bob' Evans's Flagship To Be Target For Navy's Big Guns



The Navy Department has decided to use the battleship Iowa, the former pride of the American fleet, as a moving target in a secret test to be made of the new guns of the later dreadnoughts and a new wireless apparatus. It is said that the operations of the Iowa will be directed by powerful wireless apparatus, an invention of John Hays Hammond.

Proposed by Mr. R. Macgregor, seconded by Mr. A. E. Algar:

That Mr. C. R. Burkill be and he is hereby re-elected a Director of the Company.

Proposed by Mr. A. W. Burkill, seconded by Mr. H. P. Wadman:

That Mr. G. M. Wheelock be and he is hereby re-elected a Director of the Company.

Proposed by Dr. G. E. Goode, seconded by Mr. H. R. Sturt:

That Messrs. G. H. & N. Thomson be and they are hereby elected auditors of the Company for the year ending December 31, 1920.

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

In his speech the Chairman said:

"The Report and Accounts which are now in your hands, and which, following the usual custom, I propose to take as read, refer to our twenty-second year's working.

"This year we have beaten all previous records in the amount of New Business written, applications having been received for policies assuring Tls. 3,095,875 and £1,360,421 as against Tls. 2,728,412 and £924,394 last year. The increase in Silver policies applied for is 13 percent, but the increase in Gold policies applied for is 47 percent. This increase in the volume of new business has naturally resulted in an increase in our expenses, which are also affected by the world wide increase in the cost of living.

"The total Insurance in force now amounts to Tls. 14,543,549 and £3,795,440 as against Tls. 14,265,986 and £3,015,669 at the beginning of last year, and our income during the year was Tls. 1,073,979 and £290,069 as against Tls. 1,075,688 and £243,498 in 1918.

"Our assets increased from Tls. 3,953,718 and £828,196 to Tls. 3,969,068 and £918,546 after paying Tls. 762,072 and £124,899 to our policyholders and claimants during the year.

INFLUENZA IS FACTOR

"It will be noticed that whereas the gold part of our business shows a rapid rate of increase, our silver business is more or less stationary. It should not be assumed from this that our business in silver countries is not in a healthy state, the true explanation being that residents in silver countries have been induced to effect gold policies by the high rate of exchange prevailing.

"As our Chairman anticipated in his speech at our last meeting, a recurrence of the Influenza Epidemic caused us further extra payments by way of death claims last year. In fact during 1919 17 percent of our silver death claims, and no less than one quarter of our gold death claims were due to this epidemic.

"In addition to these heavy claims we have been called upon to provide against a loss caused by the failure of the Indian Government to maintain the Rupee at a value of 1s 4d. The Government of India in 1899 adopted the Gold Exchange standard for India, and undertook to maintain the Rupee at 1s 4d, themselves raising loans in Sterling and holding reserves in Sterling investments.

RUPEES DISCUSSED

"The opportunities for the investment of a Life Insurance Company's Funds in India were very limited, and we followed the plan of investing in Sterling securities such balance of our reserves against Rupee policies as could not be suitably invested in Rupee securities. Unfortunately the value of Sterling vis a vis Rupees has now fallen, and your Directors have decided to transfer the Surplus as at the end of 1919, which amounts to £19,000, to the credit of a reserve against this depreciation in the Rupee value of Sterling.

"We regret the necessity for this step, and the losses due to Influenza, because the result is that we shall pay no bonuses on policies maturing before the date of our next Annual Meeting, and that we can pay no bonuses in respect of policies which matured between the date of our last Annual Meeting and today.

Neither shall we be able to pay dividend to Shareholders.

"The high rate of exchange during last year, and particularly at the end of the year, caused a further depreciation in silver securities, but this depreciation is fully covered by the increase in the value of our gold investments, and the investment reserve.

SEIZE OPPORTUNITIES

"This depreciation in the value of silver securities has given us an opportunity of investing some of our funds at very satisfactory rate of interest, and the opportunity has not been missed.

"A full list of our investments is on the table, and may be seen by any policyholder who wishes to inspect it.

"You will be interested to hear that we intend in the very near future to open a Fire Department and our arrangements are approaching completion. Our object is not only increase the value of our Shareholders' property, but to reduce the expenses of the Life Department by making a fuller use of our organisation, which we consider to be at least as good as any in the Far East.

"That brings me, Gentlemen, to the last point I have to bring to your notice—our staff. I regret that once again I have to refer to a death—that of Mr. Lachamp, our Agency Manager for Singapore and Penang who died at the end of last year. He was a great loss to us, and I am sure you will wish me to convey to Mrs. Lachamp your sympathy with her in her loss.

"Your Directors have great pleasure in expressing their appreciation of the loyal service given to the Company by its officials and staff. It has been a matter of no slight difficulty to meet the rapidly changing conditions of these times to the satisfaction of all concerned, but we are glad to say that our staff has always been prepared to take a reasonable view of any point that has arisen.

Finds Way To Fly At Great Heights

Remarkable Flight Over Mediterranean Made With New Motor Attachment

Paris, April 10.—The fight by the French airman Henri Roget from Paris to Lyons, a distance of 450 kilometers, in one hour and fifty minutes, has aroused great interest because of its special feature.

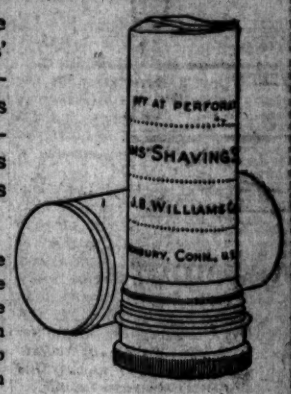
Roget, who was one of two airmen who flew across the Mediterranean and back in a single day some time ago, used on this occasion a Breguet motor of 300 horse power, which was adapted in such a way as to enable flight to be made at the great height of 5,000 to 6,000 meters. ... ... height air resistance is so reduced that speed is very largely increased. For some reason, however, engines do not function well over a long distance.

The feature in Roget's motor for his wonderful flight is a turbo compressor or turbine, which is worked by gas from the exhaust. This turbine, in turn, forces air into the carburetor and so secures perfect compression of the motor which otherwise is impossible in rarified atmosphere.

Furnished with similar apparatus and flying at a great height, another airman, Romanet, flew on Thursday from Paris to Madrid in eight hours.

Williams'
Holder Top Shaving Stick

In hot climates the necessity of Williams' Shaving stick is paramount in Shaving. Its rich, lasting lather imparts a velvety coolness to the face which makes shaving a pleasure.



An added convenience is the Holder Top feature. The holder forms the top of the box when the stick is not in use and prevents the soap from touching fingers when being used. The Holder can be reloaded at less cost than the complete stick.

At all Chemists and Bazaars.

Bernhardt, At 76, Scores Triumph

Madame Sarah Bernhardt

Madame Sarah Bernhardt, at 76, has scored a tremendous success in the role of Racine's "Athalie," playing at her own theater in Paris. This photograph shows the actress in her dressing room upon the opening night, surrounded by flowers which were showered upon her. President Deschanel, of France, who attended the performance, congratulated Bernhardt, adding that "she was indeed the everlasting glory of France."

Three Stitches In Man's Heart

Surgeons Perform Most Difficult Operation To Repair Wound Inflicted By Bullet

San Francisco, April 3.—One of the most delicate operations known to surgery, that of stitching a puncture of the human heart, was performed recently upon Calvin J. Gilmer.

Gilmer attempted to end his life by firing a bullet through his breast. The bullet pierced the left breast, punctured a lobe of the lung, passed through the heart and came out at the back.

He was taken to the French Hospital for treatment. As he was slowly bleeding to death, Dr. Asa Collins, assisted by Dr. B. F. Alden, chief surgeon of the hospital, decided to take the only chance of saving Gilmer's life.

Dr. Collins opened his patient's left side, bared the heart and found a wound an inch long. Deftly, as the faint life pulsed beneath his hands, Dr. Collins took three stitches in the wound and the patient is now on the road to recovery.

To reach the heart, it was necessary to cut away two ribs after laying back a portion of the skin and flesh several inches square. The two ribs were detached from the breast bone, then broken and laid back, so the heart could be reached.

The bullet hole was through the muscular portion of the left ventricle and the reason the heart had not stopped functioning was because a blood clot had formed, preventing the blood from encircling the organ and choking off its action.

The operation, the third of its kind, according to medical records, is known as cardiorrhaphy. A number of years ago similar operations were performed in New York and Boston.

WHEN CUTTING HIS TEETH
This Baby Suffered Greatly.

Baby's Own Tablets Were All That He Needed

Mrs. W. Pelham, of McCreary, Manitoba, writes:—"I consider Baby's Own Tablets a splendid medicine for children. My baby was very ill when cutting his teeth and greatly troubled with toothrash, inflamed mouth and nervousness. He was unable to take food for two days owing to ulcerated mouth, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the sore mouth soon healed and his health improved in every way. Another thing in favour of the Tablets is that they are much easier to give to a young child than a liquid medicine."

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are guaranteed perfectly harmless even to the youngest infant, and are recommended for simple fever, indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea, croup, eczema, also to expel worms. They make teething easy, induce soothing, healthful sleep in a natural way, aid the appetite and promote normal growth.

Obtainable from chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Important Notice

My late grandfather, Mr. Chuan Sien, (筠仙公) had, in the thirteenth year of Kwang Shu, bought twenty shares of the Chen Chi Woo Insurance Co., (仁濟和保險公司) Nos. 16140/59, with an Interest Book. On the 5th day of 7th moon of the Kee Vee year (己未), my servant, Yue Tseng Yung, was ordered and brought with him the said share certificates, by traveling in the train from Changsha to Hankow, for drawing interest. While he was at Li-lu in the night, the said certificates were stolen and immediately after the case was reported to the Railway Station for recovery, without trace.

Having requested the Magistrate and Chamber of Commerce jointly the said Insurance Company, Shanghai, was advised of the loss and to issue new Certificates.

I hereby further declare the nullification of the original, both in Chinese and Foreign Newspapers of Shanghai and Hankow.

Sylvia Bobs Up

SYLVIA Pankhurst is again in the news. Her offices in the East End of London have been raided by the police and documents seized. It sounds like the old times come again. Only this time it is not about woman suffrage. Times have changed since those old days when the suffrage leader told the hunger-striker: "Pray to God, dearie, and she will comfort you!" Sylvia is tracking bigger game, these days. She is a Bolshevist. Not only is she active in the "Norkers' Dreadnought" publications, but she is affiliated with the Third Internationale, which takes its mandates from Moscow and demands peace with the Soviet Government. That in fact is among its simplest demands. But more of that anon.

As to Miss Pankhurst, it was announced at the secret congress of the Third Internationale, which was held in Amsterdam in February that the attempt of the Communists to hold a conference in Germany had failed, the only persons attending being "some Germans, two Rumanians and Sylvia Pankhurst. "This announcement was made by the Chairman, D. Wynkoop, of The Netherlands Communist Party.

Miss Pankhurst also was present at the Amsterdam Congress, which by the way had its own troubles, and "owing to the action of the Dutch authorities" eventually closed without finishing its agenda. It did however adopt resolutions regarding Soviet Russia, as follows:

A revolutionary action of the workers, to force international capital to make peace with Russia, is a necessary condition to save Soviet Russia, and to hasten the world revolution.

To further this action, the communists of all lands must utilise every strike movement, every mass demonstration.

(1) To place this aspect of their responsibilities to the Russian revolution before the workers;

(2) To convince them that their interests are identical with those of Soviet Russia;

(3) To develop a strong feeling of revolutionary solidarity and revolutionary action the world over.

As the pressure of the workers upon the governments is increasing, the tendency is for the capitalist governments to propose a compromise peace, with the object of disintegrating Soviet Russia from within. The latest proposal to take up commercial relations through reactionary representatives of pre-revolutionary co-operative societies that have since merged into the Soviet organisations, aims at separating the peasents from the workers and destroying the Soviet monopoly of foreign trade. Under the cloak of such maneuvers, a great military spring offensive is being prepared, much be prevented at all costs.

It is, therefore, essential that this international bureau takes immediate steps to prepare an international demonstration-strike against intervention in Soviet Russia. Such a strike not alone to demand ending the blockade and intervention in Soviet Russia, but to include political and economic demands adapted to the revolutionary requirements of the conditions prevailing in each nation. This demonstration to be supplemented by coercive strike as the workers gain strength for such further action, in which special attention has to be paid to the expedition and transportation of war materials and equipment, propaganda being carried on to withhold labor in such instances.

The appeal to the workers for international strike-action must not be made exclusively through the bureaucracy of the trade unions, but emphasis must be placed upon the masses in the unions, upon extra-union mass organs, and the creation of such organs if necessary.

When the revolution again rises in Germany, or in any other country, the forces of the international proletariat (especially the transport workers in Britain, America, France, Italy, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland) must be prepared for a general strike the moment the capitalist Powers attempt intervention. The bureau is to take immediate steps for organising this action in time to prevent the workers being again forestalled by the governments.

The report of the Executive Committee of the British Socialist Party, presented to the annual conference of the party contained the above resolutions, which are of special interest when one considers the delegations of Western groups which were represented in the secret Congress at Amsterdam. The report as printed in the London Times said:

"During the year we have maintained as close relations as possible with the Communist parties and groups in other countries. The British Socialist party was represented by two delegates at a conference of the Third Internationale at Amsterdam. D. Wynkoop (Dutch Communist Party) was chairman. Delegates were present from Great Britain (British Socialist Party, Workers' Socialist Federation and Workers' Committees): Germany (one delegate representing an anti-Parliamentarian group): Holland, America, (Communist Party) and Belgium. Hungary was represented unofficially by a comrade who had been a member of the Budapest Government during the Bela Kun regime, and Russia by a Dutch comrade, holding a direct mandate from Moscow. Later a comrade attended unofficially from Switzerland.

"A letter was read from Comrade F. Loriot, stating his inability to come from France, and sending greetings to the conference. Comrade R. (Rutgers) who as stated above, had a direct mandate from Moscow, and had only recently arrived from there, made a statement. He had been deputed by the Executive of the Third Internationale to establish a bureau for Western Europe for the purpose of keeping in communication with the affiliated bodies in all countries. It was considered that Holland, owing to its geographical situation, was the best country in which to establish such a bureau. Wireless messages could be received there from Moscow. It was also proposed to establish a press bureau for the purpose of keeping all countries supplied with news of interest. The initial organisation for such a purpose was already in existence.

"On his arrival in Germany he found that a West European bureau was already functioning there, but without mandate. He suggested that it should be transformed into a Central European bureau, representing the intereats of Austria, Hungary, and the Balkan States, and linking up with West Europe through the bureau now being established. Arrangements were also made to link up with Japan and China through America.

"It was agreed that meetings of the bureau would be held every three months if possible. England, France, and Germany would form a quorum, but if any one of them was not represented two of the smaller countries would be held equivalent.

"The first subject discussed was the practical measures to be taken to stop intervention in Russia. Miss Pankhurst moved a resolution the practical effect of which was that a movement for an international general strike in support of Russia should be initiated forth with by the Communist parties in each country. The general sense of the conference was against this, and eventually a composite resolution was adopted to the effect that every occasion of industrial unrest should be taken advantage of to press home the seriousness of the capitalist attack on Russia, and that organisation should be definitely directed toward the end of a general strike."

This Third Internationale is of first importance in view of the fact that the French Socialist Party, which is at present the strongest in Europe, if we except Russia, has joined it and welcomed the Germans to it as well as the British. Study the wording of the above. "England, France and Germany would form a quorum!"

The French Socialists at their convention adopted resolutions "adhering whole-heartedly to the suggestion of the German Independents and instructing its executive committee to enter into negotiations immediately with the proper organs of the Third International, and, in accord with the German Independents, the Swiss and the Italian parties, to prepare a conference with a view to grouping with the parties forming the Third Internationale all parties resolved to maintain their action upon the basis of the traditional principles of Socialism."

Declaraing its domestic policy, the French Socialist Party then reasserted its determination to strive in its own country "for the organisation of the workers into a class party for the conquest of power with the intention of proceeding, with the force of the enfranchised working class, to the socialisation of all the instruments of production and exchange, the common purpose of sincere socialists the world around."

It then denounced the Clemenceau and Millerand ministries and ascribed the winning of the war to the sacrifices of French soldiers "and to the irresistible force of foreign revolutions, all born of the Russian Revolution."

It then said that France's 1,600,000 dead fell in vain. "There is no victory except for capitalism, piling up its profits."

Among the resolutions were: "We demand direct taxes attacking swollen revenues and capital, based upon the conscription of wealth, going as far total restitution by war profiteers, thieves of the nation; socialisation of capitalist monopolies, organisation of transportation by the state, administration by municipalities of real estate and new building, and recommended" incessant propaganda to the people who should understand that the general situation of the country is becoming more and more revolutionary."

It will be noted that at the Amsterdam Congress, Sylvia Pankhurst's resolution was too strong, even for the radicals gathered there. And with all these other fiery torches being brandished at the pale and sickly heads of capital all over Europe it is not to be wondered at that the British police are again raiding her offices.

Hazards Of Journalism

(New York Times)

The good old custom of whipping the editor when you disagree with his opinions has fallen into disuse in most parts of the United States, but in some of our neighbors to the South it persists in a somewhat aggravated form. In the fair and flourishing City of Montevideo, great and prosperous, there is a journal, El Pais, which seems to be exceptionally provocative in its comments upon eminent statesmen. One of its two directors, Dr. Washington Beltran, was some time ago slain by the hand of ex-President Jose Battle Y. Ordonez, who had taken offense at some criticism of his public career; and the same bellicose statesman lately wounded Senator Aguirre, one of the proprietors of the paper.

The surviving editor, Dr. Rodriguez Larreta, was not deterred by the fate of his colleagues. Last week Dr. Balthasar Brum, President of Uruguay, delivered an address on inter-American relations which stirred Dr. Larreta to take his pen in hand. His observations got under the skin of the administration so successfully that the President's brother promptly sent him a challenge. Dr. Larreta rejected it with scorn; the President is not physically incapacitated nor enfeebled by age, he protested; let him do his own fighting. The President took him at his word, and seconds met the next day.

Thereupon, it would appear, sober second thought came over Dr. Larreta. Suppose the President proved to be as good a shot as his predecessor in office; the two would meet in the cool of the morning, and in a few minutes the President would go calmly back to breakfast in the Presidential palace while the editor's friends would mourn him. But that would be the fortune of war. If, however, the editor were a better shot than the President, the police would catch him before he got out of town. So he decided that he would fight his Chief Executive only on foreign territory.

This appears to have been too much for Dr. Brum. The President cannot be expected to take the boat for Buenos Aires every time he is offended by editorial criticism; and as the dispute now stands the President insists that he fight in his home town, or not at all. To the Anglo-Saxon mentality it would seem that this conclusion ought to save everybody's honor; and the newspaper, which has been a thorn in the side of the administration, will not have to suspend through lack of an editor. The Uruguayans are a cultured and progressive people, eminently able to attend to their own affairs, but it would seem to the outsider that in no country today is there such a surplus of able statesmen or competent critics that we can afford an increase in the mortality rate of these classes.

The Teacher

You may teach geography in April, but grammar is a futility.

Alien in mine own countree—
Beside the fanciful Summer sea,
The Chinese junks go rollicking by,
The cherry-tree bloom swings sweet on high,
And little birds wing in the far, bright sky—
Yet all of the eyes that dance as they see,
Quietly cold they look at me,
An alien in mine own countree.

They of the elfin-shining eyes
Look at me with a delicate scorn;
They laugh with an infinite fine contempt,
Then off to the call of a fairy-horn
Over the hills, dancing the lea,
In the beautiful Spring of mine own countree,
They lilt like a song—nor think of me!

Could I but catch the tiniest one
With the gray-sea eyes and the whimsical brow
And carry him off in a Pirate Boat
To the wonderful Isles, I could teach him how
Up in the hills and over the lea
In the beautiful Spring of mine own countree
I am a Child as much as he!

But—April is here! And there's grammar to learn,
Away from the rainbows—turn, oh, turn!
"What are the principal parts of 'be'?"
Beside the fanciful Summer sea
The Chinese junks go rollicking by
The cherry-tree bloom swings sweet on high,
And little birds wing in the far, bright sky.
Yet all of the eyes that dance as they see,
Quietly cold they look at me—
An alien in mine own countree.

Mr. Chamberlain's Budget

(The Nation, New York)

Every post-war budget partakes of the nature of a rake's repentance and requires to be scrutinised in this light. Credit may fairly be given for the claim to do better in the future, but the promises and pledges to support this claim cannot expect a blind acceptance. These broad maxims are applicable to the surprisingly fine attempt made by Mr. Austin Chamberlain, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his budget speech. When it is remembered that the pre-war revenue and expenditure of Britain balanced at a little below 200 millions pounds sterling, Mr. Chamberlain's estimate of revenue for this year at 1,418 millions, and of expenditure at 1,184 millions, leaving 234 millions for debt redemption sounds almost incredible. How is it possible that more than seven times as much revenue can be obtained than was got in 1913, and nearly 100 million pounds more than was received last year with the full burden of war-taxes unabated?

Part of the explanation is found in large adventitious aids, the attribution to the income account for two years of the heavy proceeds from the sales of war-materials which in strict book-keeping should go to the capital account. Some 250 million pounds sterling, as compared with 300 millions for last year, stand under this head. But the main sources of this huge revenue are found in the inflated money values of all commodities and of most incomes. Before the war the accepted estimate of the aggregate national income was 2,300 million pounds. Now, with a rise of general prices near 140 percent distributed in enhanced profits, rents, wages, and salaries among the various classes, it cannot be less than double that sum. Only upon this supposition is it possible to account for the enormous increases of yield of income tax, super tax, and excess-profits tax, which furnish, together with customs and excise, the great bulk of the revenue. There exists, of course, no such enhanced material prosperity as is at first suggested by the yield of these taxes. On the contrary, they furnish a sinister testimony to the failure to prevent the further processes of borrowing, inflation, and rising prices, which have been continued from the time of war into the time of peace in Britain, as in other European countries, though in a less violent measure. Though the reports of the speeches in the House of Commons debate yet available do not supply close information of the yield of the various taxes upon income, it is evident that the general income tax and, still more, the excess profits tax, have yielded results considerably in excess of the estimate.

It will, no doubt, be found that last year's revenue and that for this year, will be swollen by an enormous sum from those excess profits which war profiteering and the general doubling of money-profits in all successfully conducted businesses has brought about. This sources of income is, however, essentially precarious. Its yield will necessarily fall with any successful process of deflation, or with any fall of prices due to increased supply or to governmental regulations. Moreover, the revision of last year's cut of the excess-profits tax, and the return to 60 percent for this year, is open to grave objections and is only defensible as being less objectionable than any proposed alternative.

Apart from the greatly enlarged duties upon spirits and other alcoholic drinks, the net yield of which is doubtful, the only important change proposed in the tax system is the adoption of a new tax of 5 percent upon all profits from companies. The direct defenses of this measure are two: First, that it will provide a substantial sum, easily and certainly collected; and, secondly, that it will broaden the basis of taxation by means of an indirect tax extending to all "unearned" income, small as well as great. Its defects are a discouragement pro tanto of the advantageous process of substituting joint stock for private business enterprise, and the introduction of a new partial income tax with a highly complicated incidence. For nobody can say how far such a tax will lie where it is put, or how far it will be passed on to the consumer in a further rise of price.

Except so far as this and other indirect taxes affect the price of the necessaries of life and such conventional comforts as alcoholic liquor and tobacco, it may fairly be contended that the policy of the Government conforms to the sound principle that taxation be raised in accordance with ability to pay. Income, super tax and excess profits tax, with certain luxury duties, fall chiefly upon the high nominal and real incomes of the rich. Although the low level at which income tax begins now brings large sections of the skilled workers within the net, the amount actually contributed by them is shown by statistics presented to the Income Tax Commission to form a very trivial proportion of the aggregate revenue. The wealthy, who, from economic necessity, were chief contributors to the war taxes, are now virtually told that they must expect to continue handing over to the Government as much as half, or even more, of their income during years of peace. In twenty years' time, when according to Mr. Chamberlain, the burden of war indebtedness will be defrayed, they may look forward to an income which "they can call their own."

There is only one way of curbing the voracity of the modern state, and that is, by a strong rally of the well-to-do classes in favor of economy. And economy hinges on policy. Now in England, at any rate, some considerable increases of civil expenditure are unavoidable. The civil estimates for this year are considerably more than double the total expenditure for all services before the war. This is, of course, largely due to increased salaries and other costs involved by the rise of prices, and, partly, to necessary extension in education, public health, and other strictly serviceable work. But vast sums are squandered upon forms of expenditure introduced as war controls and surviving under the pretext of peace emergency. Hordes of officials still crowd the purlieus of Westminster, harassing trade and helping to impede the return to normal conditions. Still worse, the war policy of subsidies for bread, coal, and railways accounts for more than ninety millions of this year's expenditure, and there is no early prospect of this vicious system coming to an end.

But the most precarious aspect of this finance rests upon the hazards of foreign policy. If the world had learnt its bitter lesson and was steadfastly moving along the path of peace, retrenchment in expenditure on armaments would speedily set finance upon an easier footing. But Britain, following the evil genius of France, committed herself to a peace with no security except the maintenance of forcible predominance, with the result that she must keep up an expenditure upon defense far exceeding the pre-war level, and add an enormous cost for the new service of the air. Nor is this the worst. What guarantee can Mr. Chamberlain pretend to give that his specious estimates of expenditure will not be exceeded by fresh demands for war expenditures in Turkey and the Balkans, and by fresh subsidies to impoverished allies?

We see, however, a sign of returning sanity among certain powerful sections of the propertied and ruling classes of Britain, in a recognition that a Europe kept deliberately dangerous by French militarism and by the enforcement of impossible terms of peace involves a more certain and a more dangerous attack upon property than any threats of socialism, or the encroachments of labor unionism. Their restiveness in the face of a confiscatory taxation which they cannot shift or evade to any great extent, is mainly responsible for the pressure on the Government to adopt a more reasonable attitude in the enforcement of the peace terms and in its Russian policy.

Degoutte

The Man Of Action

General Jean-Marie-Joseph Degoutte, who is in active command of the French troops which advanced into Germany, is fifty-one years of age and a man of great initiative and energy. He has had much experience of Colonial warfare and, as a young soldier, made a considerable reputation during the pacification of Madagascar by the French in 1894. Like so many other commanders whose names today are world-famous, he rose to renown during the Great War, at the outbreak of which he was a battalion commander.

For his distinguished Staff work he was appointed to the position of Chief of Staff of the French Fourth Army under General Gouraud. Later he was promoted to the command of the 21st Corps, which was selected to give support. If necessary, to the British forces during General Lord Byng's attack towards Cambrai in the latter part of November, 1917.

In June, 1918 he took command of an army, which he led, together with some important American forces, during the second battle of the Marne, in which he operated on General Mangin's right and helped to take Chateau-Thierry. He also took part in the sweep forward into Belgium in October, 1918, his army—the 6th—working beside the Belgian forces, under the supreme command of King Albert, in the operation which culminated in the evacuation of Roulers and Courtrai and eventually the whole of the Belgian coast.

His stern and uncompromising attitude towards the Germans may be gauged from his inspiring speech to the French and American soldiers on the historic occasion of their entry into Aix-la-Chapelle in December, 1918. Speaking to them in the cathedral square before they marched past in front of the statue of Frederick William of Prussia, which was covered by a black veil, he said:

"Soldiers, centuries ago Charlemagne made Aix-la-Chapelle the capital of the military forces which were destined to stem the Germanic invasion. I am not able now to speak of all these invasions, and will only mention that of 1870 and that of 1914, when Belgium was violated with contempt for all signed treaties.

"I denounce as the chief author of this war William Hohenzollern, who awaits, not far from here, inevitable punishment.

"I salute before the tomb of our great ancestor the tricolor, which symbolises the victorious past of France, and I feel sure that the spirit of Charlemagne is stirred with emotion."

The Man Who Stepped Into A Big Job

BY JOSEPH LEIGH

Henry, coming into the office one day, encountered his chief very much perturbed and pacing up and down the room.

Henry was an advertising man. Seven years before he had started in the Hall-Martin Agency, specialists in mail order advertising, as errand boy. Serving his apprenticeship successively at errands, office boy, file clerk, copy holder, the end of six years found him in the printing order department. His salary was $17 a week and a Christmas present from the printer.

This day the reason for his chief's case of nerves proved to be because the star and only copywriter was taken sick. The next day was the final closing date of the June 14th, Wednesday Evening Digest. He simply had to get out a new success story about that wonderful book, "Strength of Will." Who could write it?

"You're the man to do it," his chief exploded to Henry, and slamming his office door behind him he left Henry to digest this startling news. He worked all night on the advertisement. In the morning it was on the chief's desk.

"Great! O. K. without a change!" was his delighted cry.

This piece of copy, "From Bartender to Banker: How Jim McGill rose through one evening's study of this great book," hit the bull's-eye. It sold more books than any of its predecessors. From then on Henry was a copywriter. He was wedged into the little corner office with a desk and a telephone.

It was not long before he was referred to on many questions that arose. He dictated his plans to the art manager.

For almost two years now, nineteen months to be exact, he had been writing success stories. They had sold carloads of books. True, he had his private office now, and was getting $28 a week. But then he knew he was worth much more. Copywriters in other agencies got from $100 to $200 a week for just what he was doing.

WANTED A BIG JOB

He yearned for a bigger position. One that paid more money and offered greater opportunity. Often in his day dreams he pictured himself, like a hero in one of his own success stories sitting behind the big mahogany desk, his fingers on the row of pearl buttons. One tiny push would bring the art manager. Watchful secretaries carefully guarding every move, fearful lest a moment be wasted.

Many times he had told himself what he would do if he only had the chance. If only he were among big men, confronting big problems.

His clear logical brain would dig to the root of things and move like steel to the magnet seeking correct solutions. If he only had the change.

It wasn't in Henry to look for a better job, or even to ask for a raise. He lacked the push necessary to accomplish either of these things. To his timid mind, asking for an increase in salary was as inconceivable as bringing himself to stroke a snake.

In this state of mind—always longing, but never daring—Henry droned along.

One day as he hunched over his desk, writing a particulary absorbing success story, the telephone jingled.

"This is Mr. Williams of the Progressive Advertising Agency. Do you write the advertisements for the book, "Strength of Will?"

"That's me."

"May I see you at lunch to-day? Be at the Commobuilt at one Ask the head waiter for me. Don't fail to be there."

Wonder what the Sam Hill he can want, was Henry's thought.

"Of course I have heard of the big salary you are getting with the Hall-Martin Agency. Our company plans to advertise a new book, called "Power through Concentration." May I ask if you would consider a salary of $8,000 a year to write the advertisements for it?"

Henry almost slid under the table, but he managed to sputter "Why yes." Then recovering stammered, "rr—that would be very satifactory.

The next few nights Henry could scarcely sleep. Neither could he eat nor even work properly. His mind was thinking with delicious anticipaton of his opportunity. It had come at last, and now he would show them. He always had been too big for his job. Now, about to be pitted against men of his own caliber, he was full of confidence. His brain was as keen as any. He was a match for the best of them.

Next Monday morning Henry was awake early. Who could sleep with thoughts like his? They almost seemed to burn in his head. He started downtown early, too, but in the train saw that it would never do for him to walk in on Williams at 8:15. It would be better to wait until around 9:30.

It was about 9:26 when he stood outside the door of the Progressive. He simply could not wait those four more minutes. What difference would it make, anyhow. He pulled down the front of his coat, then straightened his tie. Bump, bump, went his heart., It seemed almost audible. The elevator was on the floor below. It would be there in a moment. He put his hand on the knob, and with a sudden movement pushed open the door.

A CORDIAL FEELING

The clatter of what seemed to be hundreds of typewriters almost dazed him. Mr. Williams came out. He shook Henry's hand in his blustery, much too hearty manner.

"Good morning, I am indeed glad to see you. I'll show you your office. Then let me introduce you to the department heads."

Strange to say, Henry did not have that unshaken confidence he imagined he would have when he followed Mr. Williams to the rear.

"Meet Mr. Hopkins, our space buyer, Mr. Jameson, general manager, Mr. Howard, manager of mechanical production." Henry took their hands in his timid way, grinning like a Cheshire cat. "And this is Mr. Van Brant, our art manager," said Williams proudly, as though he were displaying a prize bulldog among a lot of terriers. A short dark, fighting type of man shot out his hand.

Henry could not help giving a tiny thought as to how they were going to hitch up. Whose ideas on illustration would dominate their future discussions? Would this art manager follow his suggestions implicitly? Henry was just the least bit doubtful. Williams spoke again.

"Of course, we won't expect you to do any writing the first week. Just read the book. Get familiar with the workings of the shop."

Henry spent the rest of the day meeting more men—the publishers of the new book and others that Williams thought he should meet.

BOTHERED ALL ROUND

Tuesday morning he was left in his office alone. It was a great, big room. Henry thought it would do nicely for a ball room In one corner was his heavy, impressive mahogany desk, highly polished, fitted with the most expensive writing appliances.

Henry tried to read the book He couldn't. The room was so big he was uncomfortable. Another effort. This time, the heavy bronze book ends caught his eye. He pulled one toward to examine it. What those things must have cost! Nothing like this in the old place. But somehow in the old place he could get interested in any book he chose In this big place it was impossible.

Then lunch time came. The space buyer invited him to lunch at one of the big hotels. Unable to refuse, Henry went. After the heavy meal, indigestion bothered him.

Why not write something' Henry got the paper, then reached for the pencil. It was an expensive silver one. Half hour spent in examining it. Then he had nothing to write. Thoughts just seemed to wander everywhere To concentrate was out of the question.

Wednesday promised to be just as fruitful. At about 10 a.m. Van Brant pushed open the door.

"Say—if you have any ideas that you would like to consider illustrating, just come in and see me. We can talk 'em over."

"Why—er—yes. I should be glad to do that. Just haven't been able to get started, somehow," was the shaky reply.

With the cigar still pointing toward the ceiling, Van Brant walked out. The old-time self-confidence was lacking, though when this was said. Would Henry stand firm on his gound if it came to a hot discussion. Oh, sure. But—er—he preferred to stay out of any argument. That was all.

Friday found Henry even more uncomfortable than ever before. It was pay day, too. At 4 o'clock the office manager knocked at the door. Apologising profusely at the interruption, he handed Henry his envelope.

As usual, he opened it on reaching home. There was one hundred and fifty-one dollars. The very sight of so much money was dazzling. The elation he felt at this wealth was dulled by the thought of the way he earned it. Henry handed it like a hot potato. He took out his customary twenty-eight then put the envelope in the bottom of his trunk.

Next Monday morning at 8:55 o'clock the door of the Hall-Martin Agency was opened. It was the same little old office. The prodigal had returned.

"Hello, Henry!" the chief called.

"'Lo, chief. Is my old job still open?"

LEVIES IN GREAT BRITAIN

Double Taxation Of Incomes Of Foreigners To Be Continued

According to the American Chamber of Commerce in London, the British system of taxing the same income twice, which hits Americans hard, in common with the other foreigners, is to continue. The report of the British Commission on Income Tax, just issued, states specifically that they cannot recommend any change in the existing situation as to the double taxation of the same income by the Government of the United Kingdom and the Government of a foreign State, and that foreigners resident abroad should continue to be liable on their British income at the full standard rate, without allowances or reliefs.

In the case of income taxed both in the United Kingdom and the Dominions, in substitution for the existing partial reliefs, there should be deducted from the appropriate rate of the United Kingdom tax, the whole of the rate of the Dominion income tax charged in respect of the same income.

In regard to trade income arising abroad, there is to be no change in the present law, which renders British resident persons of companies liable to be assessed on the whole of their trading profits irrespective of any portion arising abroad, and in the case of companies irrespective of the nationality or residence of the shareholders.

A new field of taxation is opened up by the proposal to levy a tax on "casual profits," e. g., on any profit transaction recognisable as a business transaction, and on the true remuneration of employment, including any subsidiary benefits arising out of the employment, although these are not capable of being turned into money.

Shanghai Delegates Arrive In U. S. For Big Convention

San Francisco, April 24.—The vanguard of American business men in the Far East coming to San Francisco as delegates to the foreign trade convention arrived here yesterday on the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Ecuador.

A. R. Hager, chairman of a delegation of eleven from China, sounded the keynote which the delegation will carry into the convention, when he declared that he and his associates will strive for the promotion of legislation enabling American capital in the Orient and other foreign lands to incorporate nationally as American companies.

Besides Hager the delegation includes V. Armstrong of Anderson, Meyer & Co., Shanghai; J. P. Babcock of the Standard Oil Company of New York at Shanghai; A. O. Baker of Connell Bros., Shanghai; F. A. Foster of the Chinese government schools at Paotingfu; S. S. Marshall of the Chinese and Mongolian Export Company of Tsingtau; Captain H. E. Morton of Morton & Reaves, Shanghai; J. Rosenfeld of Rosenfeld & Son, Shanghai; W. E. Rowe of Fobes & Co., Shanghai; H. A. Solomon of Arkell & Douglas, Shanghai, and G. L. Treadwell of the Chinese-American Publishing Co., Shanghai.

The bill the delegation will seek to have the convention get behind is before Congress and provides for the incorporation of American companies to do foreign business exclusively.

Hager said that American capital in the Orient has been under a great disadvantage through being unable to incorporate nationally and thus have the authority of the American government at its back. He and other delegates voiced the conviction that Great Britain is pulling every possible wire in the trade war with America in the Orient.

As a striking instance of this and an illustration of the needs for the incorporation law, he pointed to the recent British privy council order providing that the managers and directors and majority of the board of directors of all companies incorporated under British laws shall be subjects of Great Britain.

The British-American Tobacco Co., with other big concerns which have been hit by the ruling, had incorporated under the Hongkong ordinance, British, because of their inability to incorporate nationally as American companies.

After developing their business and making great strides, in competition with the British, the companies suddenly have found themselves cut adrift. Some have tried to meet the situation by taking British subjects into the directorate, but the only cure, the delegates declare, is the passage of the incorporation law.

Captain Henry Morton, formerly master of the steamer Mongolia and subsequently director of the Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., an American concern incorporated under the Hongkong ordinance, is one of the Americans who found himself dislodged by the British order.

The delegates were met at the pier by a reception committee headed by William H. Hammer and including E. W. Wilson, J. J. Arnold, Ben C. Dailey, W. B. Hamilton, C. E. Hydes, Captain I. N. Hibberd, G. I. Kenney, R. A. Bird, B. C. Hubbard, J. A. Fleischer, F. E. Hinckley, Caly Hutchinson and E. K. Home.

Plans for the informal entertainment of the delegates have been made.

Marriage, As It Is, A Failure, Says Paris Suffragist

BY MARIA VERONE
(Eminent French Lawyer and Suffrage Leader)

Paris, April 18.—Marriage in its present form is a failure. It no longer corresponds to the demands of modern life. It tries to bind Twentieth Century people by the rules and conventions of hundreds of years ago. I don't think it is possible to have a return to former austere customs and habits. It is folly to attempt making divorce laws more stringent.

Marriage today is no longer any guarantee for women. Divorce is obtainable so easily that a woman does not feel that because she marries she is free from care. Her husband may leave her, fall in love with another woman. The wife of today is obliged to be on her guard as much as the woman who lives in a state of free love.

As marriage is no longer a guarantee for women, its social role disappears. It becomes, on the contrary, harmful, for the survival of the old marriage ideal prevents women from living their own lives, while at the same time it offers them no security. Marriage today is little but successive polygamy.

It is useless to try to turn back the tide. Our entire development is toward greater liberty. We must evolve a new type of union, a union in which woman is the main factor, the stable element. It is she who must have the home, the authority, control of finances. She alone must have the right to her children. All the necessary legal guarantees must be given unions of this type.

At present a divorced woman is far from having the same position, materially and morally, that she had as the wife of the man from whom she is divorced. The alimony she receives is often insignficant compared to what she has been used to. Her entire life is changed, her standard of living lowered, because of the divorce.

Modern society must change marriage so that woman's position remains unaffected by the presence or absence of the man. In this way the home will recover its stability, society its equilibrium and general morality will benefit.
